Dr. Lave had nothing further to say. He had done as it appeared to him that the college council was based upon illigality; it was unlawfully convened and the Act establishing it was null and void. The only action which could be carried out. It was given this information as the reason why he (as one of twelve councillors) could not co-operate in the proceedings. He was to be taken in the matter, that he had no voice and to that which he considered the justice of the case, he should leave the present meeting to carry out further objects as it pleased. (Cheers.)

The Rev. PRINCIPAL then left the hall amid mingled cheers and tokens of disapprobation.

The Rev. PRINCIPAL put the resolution. As he was doing so, Mr. Robert Campbell rose in the body of the hall and said, "I have no objection to the resolution appearing to stimulate him to speak, and the singing him to sit down. The Principal declared the meeting closed." (Cheers.)

THE PRINCIPAL then said (amid great noise). I have no desire to be put down. I don't want to make myself agreeable to this meeting, or to make it disagreeable by observations. I claim my rights as a citizen, as a father and as a man, and I will not be put down.

THE PRINCIPAL, inquired what right Mr. Campbell had to say anything, and Mr. Campbell said, "I have no right to say anything, but I will say it."

Mr. CAMPBELL: I claim my right as a citizen and taxpayer of this State.

THE PRINCIPAL: The resolution has been moved, seconded; no amendment was submitted; the resolution is adopted.

After some further discussion Mr. Campbell said to the Rev. J. B. LAUGHTON very heartily offered to resign his congregation and to leave the State, and Mr. Campbell said he would do so if the church would so recommend.

Mr. CAMPBELL: The resolution has not been carried.

lature, in its principal points as follows:—the principal and twelve councillors not more than three of whom, in addition to the principal, should be members of the college; and that there should be a committee of five members of the college to constitute a body under Act of Parliament there must of necessity be four ministers. In addition to the principal. They were to have a schoolmaster, and that was the only person he had no hesitation in declaring his belief and conviction that the college was not founded on a legal basis—(heavily laughing.)—that the Act of Parliament was not before Parliament, and that it could not receive the approval of the highest authorities in our land. It was particularly to be noted that the Act of Parliament was not the work of other friends of education in the colony was more explicit on the subject than the Act of Parliament itself. The principal and the twelve councillors associated with him was more explicit on the point to which he had been alluding, and that the Act of Parliament was not the portion of the Act referred to.—"So soon as it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the Governor that the college is not founded on a legal basis, the amount shall be settled for the endowment aforesaid, and that the amount shall either be paid or secured to be paid for that purpose, in accordance with section two, nineteenth historic, and thirty-second of the original Act of Parliament for the government of the said college, in accordance with the provisions of the said Act of Parliament."

N. W. Lang did not leave either the Governor or the Cabinet in ignorance of the subject. (Laughter.) He went up with this opinion to his Excellency himself, and his Excellency told him that he had never heard anything about the subject, and asked him to go and check it up. — You know that bundles of papers, — and added, — "I sign as a matter of course." "Whether right or wrote your Excellency he (Dr. Lang) added, as his Excellency repeated his words, "Whether right or wrong, I am bound to do my duty." He said that he was neither the Governor nor the Cabinet Council had any authority or any power to set aside a positive Act of Parliament. He said that he was not at all certain whether the Government did agree with the learned gentlemen who were against the cause as he had just been doing himself, and he thought it would be better to let them speak. Sir James Martin strongly advised that an appeal be made to the Privy Council, as he was confident that no such decision could be given by the House of Commons. Most of those present were aware that he had lost time. Most of those present were aware that he had lost time. Most of those present were aware that he had lost time. Most of those present were aware that he had lost time. Most of those present were aware that he had lost time.

to the Act was refused, repudiated by that body. The members of the Association therefore standing opposed to the Act, and about to appeal to the Privy Council in the British Empire (Hear, hear). It was not the first time that he had done so. He had had to appeal to the Privy Council in the case of the British India Bill many years before; and with the advice of the eminent lawyers had been employed in this case at his instance (particularly Mr. Justice Martin), but he so far as to thank him in appealing to that honorable body on this occasion. He did not do so willingly, however. (Cries of "Oh, ah, and laughter.") He loved him in the meantime in very considerable expense. He had been a member of the Association for many years. He felt loyal and satisfactory. Supposing the thing were to go on as at present, and the college to get the donation, the chairman had appended the names of those rich men to whom he would have been glad to have given the money, but he would when put to rights—supposing that the heirs of such benefactors were to ascertain that the college was based on the principle of the British India Bill, as it was at present, would they pay the institution at all? No. Certainly not. What reason, then, was it that induced the donors to give to the college? Counsel to refuse the donation. The college. Counsel to refuse the donation. The irrevocable proposition had been made. He would not. It was simply this. If the present Act was sanctioned, then every subscriber who was dissatisfied with the present constitution of the college, while this institution had been in existence, for reasons which this Association had not state at present—all the subscribers who were dissatisfied with the present proceedings would be at liberty to withdraw their names and contributions. He would not. He would stand by their own views of propriety. (Cries of "Hear, hear,"—"Time, time,"—"Go on and die for the cause,"—"Time, time,"—"Do not let us lose this.") (Uproar.)

valued towards paying the expenses of young men at the College. The expense of a young man at the University for a year, for instance, was £100, and the University would be obliged to provide him with £25 for books, making about £125 in all. In addition to this, if he came from the country, there would be his charges for living, so that the expense of attending at Oxford was added. He had thought that the funds arising from the various schools properties throughout the colony might be devoted to this purpose, and he made a motion for the appointment of a committee to enquire into the matter. The University, Support (Bathurst), for instance, had a half acre of land dedicated for a Presbyterian school, and the erection of a Public School alongside caused the Presbyterian school to be abandoned. He thought that the money from that property should be handed to be £20 a year, then give it to one of the most deserving young men, to pay his expenses at St. Andrew's college for a year or two. He believed it would be quite sufficient to pay the expenses of a young man at the University, and they might have a Midland bursary, and so on. With these remarks he was glad to second the resolution, and especially that part of the resolution which mentioned the University of the United Kingdom, and the University in New South Wales. To use the words of an English Justice, their children, and their children's children.

ren, would bless the names of those who pursued the golden hours of their youth, and (apparently) a glorious example of the same. (Applause.)

Mr. R. CAMPBELL, who came forward amid mingled cheers and signs of disapprobation, said he did not wish to occupy the time unnecessarily that evening; but he felt it his duty to protest against proceedings that were not in accordance with the principles of the association, and to apologise for Mr. Lang, for he did not think Dr. Lang the most proper person to hold the position of president of the association.

reption. In inaugurating an institution of that kind it was of the greatest importance to the country, and to the youth of this country, that they should be taught by men who were not only men of letters, but men of piety. The Church as well as to men of the Free Church. (Cheers.) He entered a protest against any person holding the position of Principal of that institution. (Cries of Question.) He asked the Moderator, "Is Mr. Campbell a subscriber?" Of course, if he was in the presence of Presbyterians, of Scotchmen, and of any persons who were of the Free Church, he was not, he expected those who would not hear him to leave the meeting. (Interruption.) This matter was of serious importance, and not to be dismissed over so trifling a question as being of the Free Church. He would move as an amendment the following protest—"That Christ being King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, has the right to occupy a place in any man who denies Him having a right to occupy a position in any institution for the education and the crisis of our Church." (Interruption and cries of What does he mean? and a loud cheer.) He explained. A voice: There is no such question before the meeting. He referred to the latter part of the Declaration of Principles, "that we are all of one mind." They all knew what the contention of the Church of Scotland had been. What had brought about that mighty disruption? It was the headship of Christ. If they were of one mind, they would have had chosen a man who had denied the right of Christ to reign over them. (Continued interruption, and cries of I'm not here.) He referred to the Declaration of Principles. "Time, time." This sentiment had been chosen, (Hear, hear.)

Rev. W. BAIN rose to order. He would ask if this was a proper amendment to put? (Cries of "No, no.")

THE CHAIRMAN read the amendment.

Rev. J. B. LAUGHRON protested against that being received as an amendment. (Loud cheers.)

THE CHAIRMAN thought it quite clear that it was not an Sydney, October 20.

THE BISHOP OF ARMIDALE
MRS. CURREY.

The resolution was put, and declared to be carried unanimously. (Loud cheers.)

Rev. Dr. Curry then moved the third and last resolution. He said it was evident from the proceedings of that evening that education was a popular subject among the Brethren, and that the time had come when it was not only as education popular as regarded the Public schools, but that education in the higher branches, the Universities and Colleges, was becoming popular. It was a matter of popular interest, as it had brought forth to the meeting that night. It was a very hopeful aspect of affairs (laughter), and he was agreeably disappointed, for he believed that in the future the Brethren would be below 200, whereas he had found it above the boiling point. (Cheers and laughter.) The resolution he had to propose was, that the Brethren should be encouraged to still. If fully and fairly carried out it would give an opportunity to many a son to enter the halls of the higher branches of learning, and to fill himself for the highest position in the Church or in the world. He believed that from a land where learning was proverbially encouraged, yet in that land it was not very easy to obtain that education which was necessary for the highest position in the Church or in the world. It was easy to obtain it, for if a young man had pockets of sovereignty, the highest walks of learning were open to him. There was one of the things that he had been very much struck with, and that was the fact that the colony in behalf of this college he had given the people the opportunity to understand that he did not want a contribution from them, but that he wanted to see that they were not in their walls. Hear, hear. He wanted that they should do as their fathers had done before them, and should be encouraged to send their sons and daughters through a higher education. He would refer to a couplet set by a gentleman belonging to his congregation, the late Mr. Bowman, who had such a zeal for the education of the Brethren, and who had been very anxious to help them to help them to obtain the advantages of a higher class of education. Applause. In the old country there were found in the defendants, all persons from the line of walks of life, and of various nationalities, and that the defendant, who was a man would be a man because he had something in him, and was able to express that something in a way that would benefit his fellow men. (Applause.) The resolution he had to move was as follows:—"That, in order to encourage young men to prosecute the higher branches of view to the ministry, this was not the case. He was, indeed, especially favored for this purpose, as the liberal members of the Church, who were not in the habit of contributing money for the support of the ministry, in Scotland, where he himself was educated, there were no less than eighty scholars, who were educated at the expense of the Church. People here sometimes told that they were in the habit of the age in seeking to establish colleges here, but he could not find that they had been founded in any of the countries of the north, or in Scotland, where the population was not larger than that of Australia now is, and where the Church had endowed those colleges in the same manner as in the United States and universities. (Cheers.)

many present who took such a warm and emphatic interest in the subject, he had been impelled to say so much. He felt convinced they were all willing to let controversy go by, and unite heartily in the object they had now before them.

Mr. T. BROWN, M.L.A., seconded the resolution, which was carried without dissent.

THE REV. MR. CAMERON pronounced the benediction, and the meeting closed.

THE LICENSED VICTUALLERS ACT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR,—The subject of the letter in this morning's issue is of too much importance, and one in which it is of so much less importance to the Government, to be treated as a mere matter of business. The subject is of such importance, that it is of the highest importance to the public, and it is of the highest importance to the public, that it should be treated as a matter of business.

Fig.—I am prepared to agree with the most zealous advocates of total abstinence, that the law affecting the sale of intoxicating liquors is a most important one, and that the Government should be amongst the first to rejoice at the passing of such a measure through Parliament, judiciously altering the existing enactment, and giving equal weight to the rights of the publicans as without their redeeming qualities. I am, however, of opinion that to rest upon them, and such merciless denunciation as was hurled at the expiration of their sentence has been suggested, is as selfish and an unwillingness to contribute towards the improvement of the community, as finding and placing in situations where they will be able to do mischief, and which will have had great reason to deplore. I find in your article some remarks somewhat assiduous in the investigation of the subject, and I am glad to hear that to this extent this may operate favorably, to wit:—

There have been some persons acquainted with me, who are not only very respectable men, but good and useful members of society. To such as these I should offer encouragement in their efforts to attain a true and entire Christianity, and means to place them beyond want.

There are others, however, who are not so far advanced, and more the opportunity of becoming useful members of the church, and enforcing religious instruction as to have very little to do, and I would not wish to leave the matter to other hands than mine, and would

SERIOUS CASE.—About 7 o'clock on Sunday evening last, George Thompson, barrowman, expired suddenly at his residence at 10, Burnside-street, off Goulburn-street. On the morning of the 19th inst. he was assaulted and stabbed in the face by a man named William Towson, who was taken before the Central Police Court, and from there committed to the Central gaol. He was again committed before the Central gaol on the morning of Quarter Sessions, on the charge of unlawfully detaining a man to take him to the Darlinghurst awaiting his trial for the offence of which he was charged. His wound continued in the god at the Central gaol, and he died on the 22nd inst. since the date of the assault, Thompson has been complaining of illness. On the 22nd inst. he was seen by Dr. Egan, who prescribed for him, and he was sent to an outdoor patient at the Sydney Infirmary. He was seen by Dr. Egan after death. An inquest will be held at 10 o'clock this morning, at His Honor's Court, at Goulburn and Pitt streets, when the man Towson will be brought before the Coroner's Court on a writ of habeas corpus.

THE MYNDA JEWISH SABBATH SCHOOL.—The general meeting of the subscribers to, and the annual examination of the pupils of, the Mynda Jewish Sabbath School, was held on Sunday morning, the 24th inst., at the Masonic Hall, York-street, which was kindly and cordially received by the members of the institution, and by the congregants under the ministrations of that morning service, the Rev. Mr. J. H. Phillips, who occupied the Pulpit. There was a very large and influential attendance of the friends of the institution, and the pupils assembled to the number of over one hundred. The Rev. Mr. Phillips having been moved into the chair, and briefly addressed the meeting upon the object of the day being convened, called upon the Rev. presiding officer, Mr. J. H. Phillips, to have, in connection with the examination. This portion of the proceedings served to create much interest, and the very satisfactory manner in which the children acquitted themselves was highly pleasing, and elicited the laudatory comments of the friends of the institution.

The gentlemen who subsequently addressed the assemblage were Mr. H. B. Hoffman, president; Dr. E. J. Brown, pastor; and Messrs. Wm. C. Coffey, A. B. Nelson, M. L. A., and J. R. Lewis, all laymen. The address was made by Mr. Hoffman, who treated at length upon the tenets generally of the Hebrew faith and Bible history, and his interposition was immediately received with appropriate acclamations. He delivered by pupils from the first class of 8 or 9, and from the second of 6 or 7, portions of Scripture to that of the more mature one of 12 or 13 years. At the close of the exercises, the honorary secretary, Mr. H. R. Cohen, read the report and balance sheet of the year, which was moved by the chairman in eloquent terms, and duly seconded by Mr. S. Hoffman, and upon being put to the meeting was unanimously adopted. It was followed by Mr. H. L. Nelson, M.L.A.:—"That the thanks of this meeting be tendered to the Rev. A. B. Davis for his interesting and valuable services during the past year; also to the school, to the honorary officers for their constant assistance and support, and to the honorary lady and gentleman teachers for their most cheerful and efficient ministrations by them in the conduct and tuition of their respective classes." The resolution was seconded by Mr. D. S. Levy,

It was adopted by a unanimous vote. By Mr. Joseph, who was now about leaving the colony, and who had always carried a very considerable interest in the school, and for which he had done much, the proposal was carried unanimously. The following were the valuable and mostly the gifts of the friends of the school, as well as laudable mentions, were distributed in the first of the second class.

A vote of thanks was then passed by Mr. Phillips for his kindness in presiding, the meeting dispersed, the children so they passed out being hand a bag of confectionery each, in constant usage of the now established custom of the school.

A NARROW ESCAPE FROM CERTAIN DEATH.—The cargo correspondent of the Hesperus Examiner relates that an accident, almost without precedent in the consequences, took place on Saturday, June 21st, when he was working upon the flat, having got into the rope to cross the shaft, and the rope, which he was about to be being sprung, the consequence was that he was thrown; he was unable to stay the velocity with which he was descending. Fortunately, two men who were on the spot took to his assistance, and were able to stop him within 10 feet of the bottom—thus saving him from certain death. The man who was lowering him, from the hoist where he was drawn, was drawn down, and his signa received, remained inane for half-an-hour, but, fortunately, beyond the shock and the fright he received no injury. Niel was very much cut up, and was very sorry for other parties, but, taking everything into consideration, he may consider that he has had most miraculous escape.

SEVERE HAILSTORM.—The Ralliana (a), on her last trip to the Clarence River, experienced when leaving the Solihulla a violent hail storm, which obliged her to seek shelter, and it was only by using the fire buckets as helmets that the ship's crew could be stimulated to. A great number of the hail stones were of the size of inches in diameter, and they came down with great force breaking the compass glasses. The storm lasted twenty minutes, and after the clearing of a few minutes the rain was passed which must have been killed by the hailstones.

CONDITIONAL PURCHASES: TRANSFERS.—A correspondent writes:—"During the debate on Mr. Bajer's motion in reference to Dumyria, the report of which was published in the Standard on the 22nd October, Mr. John Robertson said that transfers of land were not in his opinion, because they had to be witnessed by a magistrate, his practice was abandoned many years ago. These notifications are given by witnesses and a magistrate is a workman, and any person can witness his work."

SHEEP STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—On Tuesday last (says the Truro Times) an accident occurred occasionally to the hundreds of cattle and sheep which are pastured on the moorland of the Tamar. The storm overtook the shepherds of Mr. Smith's sheep at Tarradown, and struck one of the shepherds, a Mr. Kewley, who immediately got upon a tree to escape the lightning. He was unhurt, but three sheep were killed by the same flash.

MORROW V. BELLAMY.—We learn from the Derbyshire Courier of Saturday that on the day previous, in Chambers' before Mr. Justice, a writ of habeas corpus application of Mr. Griffith, a writ of habeas was granted in the case of Bellamy, calling upon the Sheriff to produce the prisoner, whom he had taken into custody without authority. The writ was granted upon the grounds set forth in the affidavit of Mr. Armstrong, clerk to Mr. Murphy, the principal ground being the informality of the warrant upon which Bellamy was arrested.

give some particulars of the death of William Chapman by lightning. The poor fellow was slaughtered on Ashworth and Clyde, butchers, and was also employed in the delivery of meat to that firm. At the time of the inquiry held, Lyons Ford, an estranged boy in Ashworth and Clyde's employment, narrated all the particulars. The deceased had been at the slaughter-house at Lyons Ford about 4 o'clock (the time the storm was raging), for the purpose of killing a bullock. Two were in the yard, and the deceased, in the act of pinning down the animal, was struck down by lightning. The only words he spoke afterwards were—"Give me water, and take me out of this, I am dying." Deceased was a native of the county of Wick, and was a member of the "hen" lodge. Lyons also was stung for several seconds, and both bullocks were killed.

make good his escape from the Dubbo gaol. The following day the particulars of the escape were published in the press. On Wednesday afternoon, it happened, the prisoner, Charley was engaged in the kitchen, which is situated in the gaol yard, constable Gowers being placed on sentry at the door of the yard, while constable Birge was on sentry over some prisoners who were cutting wood. By some means or other Charley displaced a cask in the rear of the kitchen, and was placed against the wall at the end of the yard (which is from view by the kitchen), and by that means managed to get away unobserved. We may further add that the gaoler, Mr. Byrne, and Sub-inspector Gleaser were on duty in the Bathurst at the time. Constable Benton and the black tracker immediately started in pursuit.

stated that the girl had been forwarded from a Melbourne registry office to Mr. Dight's as a domestic servant, she only having entered on her situation on the 10th instant. Shortly after her arrival, the girl was treated with violence in her manner; on Wednesday she was found sitting in the veranda, sobbing and crying; on being requested to go to her bedroom, and compose herself, she replied she could not, as the servant was there. Having become aware from her manner and conversation that the young woman was suffering from alteration of intellect, Mr. Dight drove her into Alfamy. She was brought before the Court as stated, and remained to go to for seven days for medical treatment.

At the rear is the coach-house and sheds, fitted with racks and manure, capable of accommodating 300 horses. There is also a garage-house, with two large gnomometers, from which the hotel is supplied with light.

RAILWAY STATION.

securing for it a permanency of value as an hotel which is enjoyed by no other establishment in the city to a like extent.

It is admitted everywhere that this house, under the supervision of a skilled manager, and thrown open to visitors of the public under the attractive, social, and genial appellation of

would not only be a grand success, but a source of material wealth to the proprietor, and which would extend itself to the general prosperity and advancement of the city. It is a first-class hotel and boarding establishment is much required, and would pay handsomely, is unquestionable, for we have Sir Alfred Stephen remarking at the banquet given to him last month, and we borrow his own words, that, "Since he first visited Goulburn it had grown greatly. Many handsome places of business and private residences in and about the town had been erected, showing signs of the increased prosperity. He regretted to find that one of the handsome hotels in Sydney was shut up. A place where for so many years he had been well received, and he would take this opportunity of avowing that regret."

was a want which he would be glad to see some capitalist rectify, by building in or near the town some large boarding-house. He was aware that attention was increasingly directed to Goulburn as a good place for people with their families to resort to for the benefit of their health. He believed no place was so popular, as many observed that health must be benefited in its unvaried climate. It was generally admitted that if comfortable and reasonable accommodation was afforded to a greater extent than was now offered, they might expect a great influx of visitors."

LOT 2—HANDSOME BLOCK OF BUSINESS PREMISES, comprising 4 first-class shops and offices, adjoining Mandelmon's Hotel, in Bloomsbury street. They are substantially built of brick, with shingled roof, each containing a LARGE SHOP, 17 feet 6 in deep, with plate-glass windows, parlours at back, two bedrooms upstairs, with kitchen and servant's room at rear.

These are unequalled for first-class premises; the situation is most excellent, nearly opposite the Railways Station. Each shop has a ready access to the street, and is

LOT 3.—FOUR FIRST-CLASS SHOPS, adjoining the above, containing each a shop 15 feet 6 in. x 15, parlour, and two bedrooms, with kitchen and servant's room. This block as an investment is unquestionably a good one; the rents receivable from Mr. James Stephenson, butcher, and others is 10s per week, and the situation is similar to No. 2 lot.

DWELLING-HOUSES, situated in Slonass-street, and adjoining the abovementioned. These buildings contain respectively, 2 parlours, 4 bedrooms, kitchens, servant's room, and necessary outhouses. Each house is in first-rate order, built of brick, and in every way complete and comfortable residences. The usual rent is 12s each per week; but if longer tenancies were granted, it is believed considerably more might be obtained.

LOT 6.—STEWART'S COACH-BUILDING, FAC-

TORY, having a frontage to Elmore-street of 66 feet, by a depth of 177 feet to a lane at rear. On this valuable freehold is erected the well-known premises of Messrs. Stewart and Sons, coach-builders.

The galvanised buildings are extensive in character, with their large and flourishing business. This, briefly, may be considered one of the best stands in the city, situated immediately opposite the Railway Station, and commanding the traffic of daily and active traffic to the terminus. Rent $1400 per annum.

LOT 7.—VERY CHOICE BUILDING ALLOTMENT, with 40 feet frontage to Clinton-street, by a depth of 203 feet, with lane at rear, and adjoining the hotel property.

LOT 8 has a frontage of 38 feet to Clinton-street, by a depth of 203 feet, with lane at rear, and adjoins the above.

LOT 9 has a frontage of 37 feet to Clinton-street, by a depth of 203 feet, with lane at rear, and adjoins the above.

The value of lots 7, 8, and 9 for business premises is really considerable, as Clinton-street now commands all the traffic contiguous to the three mills, together with the trading to and from the railway station. Indeed this street may be looked upon as the most bustling in the whole of the city.

LOT 11 to 14 have each a frontage of 36 feet to Little Sleaze-street, by a depth of 115 feet.

LOT 15.—VERY CHOICE BUILDING BLOCK.
being allotments 14 and 15 of section 42, with 123
feet frontage to Cowper-street (Yeas Road), and 330 feet to Addison-street, and situated in proximity to Mr. Wardell's iron foundry.

LOT 17.—ALLOTMENT 3, section 29, fronting Lithgow-street, containing 1 rood and 13 perches.

Plan of the above properties can be seen daily at the Rooms of the Auctioneers, and every information afforded to those interested.

FENLAY and CO. beg simply to state that these unrivalled properties are brought into the market for investment, in order to realize upon the trusts of the estate of the late N. Mandelson, Esq. The best evidence that can be afforded of the unlimited confidence possessed in the value of the securities about to be offered is to be found in the unexampled liberality of the terms, which can be taken advantage of, if desired, by the various purchasers.
